water between Cornell and Columbia. When the three crews approached the bridge Cornell took a swerve to the eastward of her course, but the bowman quickly regained his former position and there was a brave fight for the lead. At the one-mile mark Pennsylvania still retained the lead by half a length and Columbia was a half ength ahead of Cornell. The latter soon orged ahead of Columbia and then passed Pennsylvania, winning the race by a length and a half. Columbia finished third, only a length and a half behind Pennsylvania. The freshman race between crews representing Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Syracuse for the stewards' cup, presented by Francis S. Bangs, was a beautiful struggle from start to finish. On the Thames at Henley.

HENLEY, July 2.-The oarsmen from Pennsylvania University did only routine work this morning. The Belgian crew's rowing was the feature of the morning work. They created such a favorable impression that many of the spectators thought it quite possible that they would beat Leander in the trial heat, in which case the Americans and Belgians would, in all probability, meet in the grand challenge cup final. The American crew will have He Overrules City Council's Slate in its first race over the Henley course tomorrow. The general opinion of rowing men here to-night is that Leander is sure to win in the final, and in more than one quarter the opinion is expressed that at least two of the Pennsylvanians are overtrained. There was little evidence of this when the American oarsmen came in from

No Ice for Booze-Parched Throats-

Famine in Louisville. LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 2.- The ice shortage in Louisville and scores of small Kentucky towns is getting to be very serious. The decision of local dealers yesterday to fill no more out-of-town orders at present, in order to protect patrons at home, was followed to-day by the announcement of two large dealers that their supply was exhausted. They delivered during the morning what was left over from last Man and Two Boys Injured, All Being night, but at 10 o'clock this was gone. Six carloads had been ordered from Chicago and Indianapolis, and the two dealers hoped to make this supply last until the cars arrived. The demand was too great, however, and three hours' delivery emptied the wagons. There has as yet been no great suffering in Louisville owing to the famine, but dozens of towns out in the State are entirely without ice and there is little hope for any relief though big orders have been placed in the North for immediate delivery. The factories whose machinery broke down, owing to its incessant use, are still crippled, while those still in good working order are powerless to do any-
